

IRISH MILITARY CHIEF HOPEFUL OF CONFERENCE

Michael Collins Arrives In London To Head Delegation.

NOT OPTIMISTIC

Fear Meeting May Be Signal For Fresh Outbreaks In Ireland.

London, Oct. 10.—Michael Collins, commander-in-chief of the Irish republican army and outstanding member of the Sinn Fein peace delegation, who arrived here today from Dublin, is hopeful that the Irish peace conference will reach a solution of the 700 year old quarrel. "I am glad to come to London," said Collins. "I think that both sides will make a real attempt to achieve something like peace. I am not exactly optimistic but I am hopeful."

On the eve of the assembling of the peace parley disquieting reports came out of Dublin that restiveness was being shown and that the truce was being threatened.

The Irish office is much perturbed over the increasing disorders in Dublin and these infractions of the armistice may be the first question taken at Belfast.

It is feared that the conference may prove the signal of a new outbreak at Belfast.

The Sinn Feiners claim that for six months arms have been distributed in Ulster with the result that the opening of the parley will see all Ireland divided into two great armed camps. It is claimed by the Sinn Feiners that hundreds of machine guns and thousands of rifles have been distributed among the Ulster Orangemen.

The British "big six"—English envoys to the Irish conference—conferred among themselves today.

Collins, who is the outstanding figure of the Irish delegation by reason of his high military position and his popularity among the Sinn Feiners slipped into town very quietly and unannounced at 5:30 o'clock. Despite the early hour secretaries were sent out at once to round up certain London leaders and at 7 o'clock an important conference was under way.

Although Collins gave "family reasons" as the cause of his delayed arrival, reports were current that the republican commander in chief brought important news or fresh instructions from Dublin headquarters. Color was given to these reports by the speed with which Arthur Griffith, head of the Irish delegation made in calling an "all Irish" parley.

It is declared on good authority that Collins did not desire to come to London and attempted to avoid inclusion in the Irish delegation. He is said to have consented only upon the utmost insistence of Eamonn DeValera.

YANKEES WIN ANOTHER GAME; NOW ONE AHEAD

Huggins' Men Again Best Giants Monday By 3 to 1 Score.

TWO IN FOURTH

Series Now Stands Yankees Three and Giants Two Monday.

Polo Grounds, N. Y., Oct. 10.—Having had their lead cut down to nothing after winning the first two starts, the New York Americans started out on even terms with the National league champs again today, and stepped out to a fresh start in the big series, by a 3 to 1 score.

After winning their last two games, it seems that the Giants can not assume the lead themselves but must content themselves with being somewhere in reaching distance of the Yankees, who are taking shape as the pacemakers in the series. By setting the veterans down today, the Yankees hung up a new mark for McGraw's humiliated athletes to strike at and another of their famous comebacks will only place them on even terms again.

The game today was a repetition of the second contest of the series, with Artie Nehf and the kid-wonder, Hoyt, facing each other. Despite the brilliant game Nehf turned in last Thursday, Hoyt chalked up a better one, and such was the result again today. The kid got away to a bad start, when the Giants bunched hits and chased one tally across the platter in the initial inning.

The hard-hitting junior league champs came back and evened the count for their hurler in the third, however, when they tacked up a single run. They added to their total, took the heart out of the Giants and sewed up the afternoon's pastime, all in the fourth inning, when they garnered two runs. Both moundmen settled down after this spurt of pyrotechnics and it was a goose-egg battle the rest of the way, with the Yanks maintaining their comfortable lead.

The victory gives the Rupert, Houston combination another drag on the big series, and sets the series off on another chase with the Giants in the role of the chasers.

Ruth collapsed on the bench after racing around the bases and scoring on Meusel's drive. The game was delayed a few minutes until it could be learned whether he would be able to resume play or not. The crowd was unaware of what was going on.

After a few minutes rest Ruth got up and went to his place in the field and was given a great reception by the bleacherites as he hobbled out.

The Score: R. H. E. Yankees 0 0 1 2 0 0 0 0—3 6 1 Giants 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—1 10 1 Batteries—Yankees, Hoyt and Sehag; Giants, Nehf and Smith. Umpires—Rigler at the plate; Moriarity at first base; Quigley at second base; Chill at third base.

The weather was partly cloudy and cool.

"Babe" Ruth made a home run at the Polo Grounds Sunday, but the hit, a tremendous wallop into the right field bleachers, came in the ninth inning with nobody on base and failed to save the Yankees from defeat in the fourth game of the world series.

The Giants won by the score of 4 to 2, evening the count of the series, which now stands at two victories each.

The game, a snappy, quickly played contest, was witnessed by more than 35,000 persons, a few hundred less than the record crowd of last Friday. For seven innings it looked like a repetition of last Wednesday's pitcher's battle between Carl Mays and Phil Douglas, these two hurlers again being pitted against one another. Then, in the eighth, the Giants broke through Mays' guard and scored three runs—enough to win—by a pretty exhibition of consecutive batting.

The Giants added another, but as it turned out, unnecessary run in the ninth. The Yankees were able to hit Douglas consecutively only in the fifth, when they scored once, their other tally being accounted for by Ruth with his four-base blow.

Muggy and cloudy weather ushered in the day for the fifth world's series game. The weather forecaster declared, however that it would not rain before night.

BELIEVE BALLOTS WILL SHOW STRIKE OF RAILS FAVORED

Result of Vote Will Not Be Announced Until Tuesday.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—Although tabulation of the strike ballots of three of the "big four" railway brotherhoods—A. F. of L., P. M. A. and N. E. R. of L., Warren S. Stone, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers said today that the result of the voting will not be announced until Tuesday or Wednesday. Stone strongly intimated, however, that the ballots show a majority in favor of a strike.

"There is no question about the result," Stone said, "the men of my union are voting strong for a walk-out."

The vote of the engineers, railway men declare, is significant because of that brotherhood's reputation for conservatism. Other organizations are reported to have voted astrophically for a strike as the engineers.

It is probable that the course of the unions will be decided at a meeting of officials of the brotherhoods here Thursday.

Marion, Oct. 10.—Failure to verify the reported service in the army during the world war of Dwight Wellsarts, of Highland, Ill., nineteen years old, who is buried in potters' field here, through investigation made in the offices of the adjutant general of the army, Washington, today caused the abandonment of the plan of McGinnis Post, No. 162, American Legion, to disinter the body and bury it within the "honor triangle" of Marion cemetery with exercises on Armistice Day.

RAIL VALUATION TO BE ATTACKED THROUGH LAW

Taxpayers' Suit to Question Action of State Tax Commission.

Columbus, Oct. 10.—Attack may be instituted in the courts against the recent action of the state tax commission which reduced its valuation of the New York Central railroad lines in Ohio, for taxation purposes, to $100,274,260 from $113,920,880. The commission's final figures were reached after two hearings, following receipt of protests from the railroads officials against the original tentative appraisal. The New York Central proper was valued at $98,029,080 last year.

State officials have been informed by W. W. Durbin, Kenton, chairman of the Democratic state executive committee that he will see to it that a taxpayers' suit is instituted to test the commission's action in this matter if state officers do not act.

Attorney General Price's ruling that the tax commission was without power to reduce these New York Central railroad's valuation after the commission's figures had been certified by county auditors, it is charged, was disregarded by the commission which granted a rehearing and pared the railroad's valuation nearly $6,000,000 after certification of the commission's previous valuation had been certified to the county auditors.

It is reported that John A. Zangerle, Cuyahoga county auditor may contest the commission's action his county being the heaviest loser of taxes.

Protesting railroads, utilities and organizations of taxpayers, it is said may take action seeking to nullify the commission's latest reduction. It was stated, also that the attorney general may take matters in his own hands and ask the state supreme court to reverse the commission's action in this matter.

FEAR ANOTHER WAR MAY BE STARTED IN BALKAN STATES

Italy Declares Albania Under Italian Protectorate.

Paris, Oct. 10.—War between Italy and Jug-Slavia became a grave possibility today, following Italy's declaration that Albania was under an Italian protectorate.

Premier Pachitch, of Serbia, has ordered the mobilization of the classes of 1918-19-20 "to protect the Jugo-Slav frontier from Albanian aggression."

European diplomats are perturbed over the action of Serbia, which they believe, has precipitated the greatest Balkan crisis since the World War.

Italy has a large force ready to cross the Adriatic toward Albania, and according to the Serbians, the Albanian forces have been trained by Italians.

The Serbian Government Sunday sent a note to England and France protesting Albanian entrance into Serbia, with a threat of adopting retaliatory measures. This note is directed toward Italy, since that country was charged at the Council of Ambassadors two weeks ago with the protection of Albania's claims.

Replying to the Serbian allegations, the Albanians contend that all aggressions have been on the part of the Serbians, who, they declare, have crossed the frontier in three places, burning Albanian villages.

It is reported that the Supreme Council will meet within a week to try to avert the threatened clash.

FATEFUL WEEK NOW AHEAD FOR WIRTH CABINET

Government Must Accept One of Two Anti-Political Parties.

Berlin, Oct. 10.—A fateful week for the Wirth cabinet opened today. The ministry must decide within much further delay whether to take within the official fold the German People's Party, representing the industrial and financial backbone of the nation, or instead, make the much talked of swing leftward, admitting the independent socialists. Admission of the independent socialists would pave the way for a new socialization program with radical taxation measures.

After dexterously steering a middle course between these two anti-political parties which provide the balance of Germany's political power the government is today confronted with the imperative necessity of embracing either one or the other.

The motive power relentlessly forcing Chancellor Wirth towards a prompt and clear cut decision is the exchange situation which cannot continue at the present rate without bringing a crash which might compel Germany to throw up her hands as a bankrupt and petition the victorious allies for a receivership.

The German mark continues to stagger towards zero and parallel with it goes the rampage of the Austrian kronen and the Polish mark. The money presses are working overtime in all these countries and people have embarked in a wild debauch of spending which, in its economic and human interest aspects, defies description.

Germany is working full blast and is probably the busiest nation in the world today. But the money for which the people are working has lost its value. As soon as the workers get it they fling it from them in feverish haste as though the touch of it were poison.

Men work a whole month under semi-starvation conditions. Then, as soon as the pay reaches their hands, they take their families and "shoot the whole roll" for a couple of good meals and new clothes, or purchase something not so necessary as clothing.

One American dollar will buy more than one hundred marks and one mark will buy 25 Austrian kronen, 170 Polish marks or about 850 Russian roubles.

Into this situation the German people's party or the "Stinnes party" as it is sometimes called, injected the first ray of hope with a concrete proposal for economic rehabilitation. The offer was of two billion gold marks in foreign credits for government use. The cabinet was allured by the desire to accept it was off set by the fear of the monarchist elements in the "Stinnes party." The monarchists allied with the German people's party are opposed to an appeal to force, but hope to gain their ends through a peaceful reaction in favor of the return of the monarchists.

MANY SEEK COVER BY CONFESSIONS

Wheeling, W. Va., Oct. 10.—The defense in the trial of fire chief A. Burley Thompson on indictments alleging fraud in the recent city election opened today and coincident came the announcement of a veritable stampede upon the part of certain others involved, to seek cover by confessions as to corruption to the state's counsel.

It was intimated today that the defense will try to upset the story of C. W. Belleville, state witness that he signed 250 ballots that were substituted for a like number of other ballots taken from the ballot box after the polls closed. To this end, Walter B. Hilton, prominent labor leader and others connected with the printing of the ballots have been called upon to show the number of ballots printed which will be checked up against the number left over and cast. It is expected the case will go to a jury Thursday and the trials of City Solicitor J. J. P. O'Brien, City Manager Homer Crago and others will follow quickly.

Shantung Question Will Come Before Conference

Arms Meeting Will Be Confronted at Outset With Task of Determining What Questions are To Be Considered "Settled."

Washington, Oct. 10.—The arms meeting and far east conference which meets in Washington one month from tomorrow will be confronted at the outset with the task of determining what questions are to be considered "unsettled" and thus not debatable by the powers.

This became virtually assured today. The deadlock between Japan and China over the return of Shantung makes it practically certain that this famous controversial question will be put up to the powers here next month.

The Koreans, who have been quietly working here for weeks, gave Secretary of State Hughes and his associates on the American delegation for mal notice today they intend to press their cause before the conference.

They will be represented by Charles S. Thomas, former senator from Colorado, as counsel.

In a letter addressed to each member of the American four, the Koreans set forth that prior to 1904 Korea was recognized as an independent nation and concluded treaties with the principal world powers.

In 1904 when the Russo-Japanese war broke out, Korea allied herself with Japan. Korea was to permit military and naval forces to use Korea as a base for operations against Russia and in return was to "preserve and protect" the territorial integrity of her ally.

"It is by virtue of that treaty," the letter states, "that Japan is today one of the great powers and a chief participant in this conference."

"With the conclusion of the Russo-Japanese war, instead of removing her troops and armed forces from Korea, as the treaty contemplated, established permanent military and naval bases."

Thus, the letter continues, the temporary military possession of Korea which Japan obtained by treaty of alliance has been perpetuated.

DAMAGED BY ONE VESSEL AND SUNK BY ANOTHER IS FATE OF ENGLISH SHIP

Craft Rammed in Dense Fog Goes Down—Thirteen of Crew and Three Passengers are Missing—Americans on Board.

Belfast, Oct. 10.—Damaged by one vessel in a dense fog off the south west coast of Scotland and then sunk by another coming to its aid was the late early Sunday morning of the Laird Line steamer, Bowan, plying between Glasgow and Dublin. Thirteen of the Rowan's crew and three passengers are missing. Two passengers died after being rescued my vessels which responded to the wireless S O S call.

An official statement says that the Rowan carried 83 persons, including the crew, 77 of whom are accounted for by the four vessels which went to the Rowan's assistance.

Aboard the Rowan was the American Southern Syncopeated Orchestra, composed largely of colored players, who had been touring this side of the water since 1919. One of the men who died after being taken out of the sea was Pete Robinson, the drummer of the orchestra.

The accident was due to a double collision in the North Channel off Cordeval Point. The Rowan first collided with the American steamer West Camak, both of them being damaged. The West Camak stood by with forepeak full of water, meanwhile sending out wireless calls for aid. The Clan Liner Clan Malcolm responded, but in the confusion due to the heavy fog ran into the disabled Rowan, which sank immediately.

The West Camak helped in the rescue work, afterward putting into Glasgow with 26 survivors. Captain Donald Brown of Glasgow is reported to have gone down with the Rowan.

Three other vessels also answered the call and completed the work of rescue as far as it was possible.

ACUTE ALCOHOLISM CAUSES DEATH OF FORMER ACTRESS

Divorced Wife of Yale Professor Found Dead in Hotel.

New York, Oct. 10.—Acute alcoholism was responsible for the sudden death in her hotel apartment of Mrs. Eva Swarthout Wheeler, divorced wife of the late Prof. Henry Lord Wheeler for many years professor of organic chemistry at Yale, according to two physicians today.

Prof. Wheeler was a son of the Chicago multi-millionaire.

Mrs. Wheeler's body was found on her bed by her 14-year-old son, Henry Irving Wheeler. She had been dead at least four hours.

On the dressing table and dresser were found partly empty bottles of gin, mute witnesses to the circumstances.

Mrs. Wheeler was a chorus girl before she married Prof. Wheeler in 1906. Five years later she divorced him on the grounds of "intolerable cruelty" being awarded the custody of their only child, Prof. Wheeler settled $100,000 on her in lieu of alimony.

DRINKING PARTY ENDS IN DEATH; HOLD 2 WOMEN

"Billy Deslys," Picture Actress, and Friend Detained By Officials.

DIRECTOR IS DEAD

Al Stein Found in Apartment Dead—Liquor Is Blamed.

Los Angeles, Oct. 10.—Miss Mildred Frances Bellwin, 26, known on the stage as "Billy Deslys" and Mrs. Jean Munroe, 23, and pretty, are in jail here today in connection with the mysterious death of Al Stein, assistant director of the Century Film corporation.

Stein was assistant to Fred Fishback, recently prominently mentioned in the Arbuckle case. Telegrams and notations bearing on the Arbuckle party were found in Stein's apartment.

The police answered a call from the Stein apartment early Sunday morning. They found Stein on the floor dead, his head propped up on two pillows. He had been dead for approximately four hours. There was a two inch scratch on his left cheek.

Mrs. Munroe, was in the apartment when the police arrived. She said that Stein came to the apartment late at night with three men, that the men held a "party" at which there was much loud talking and drinking and which finally broke up when Miss Bellwin came to the apartment.

"Billy" came through the room where the men were sitting, but she did not stop to talk and none of the men were introduced to her," Mrs. Munroe said.

Miss Bellwin said that about 2:30 in the morning when she was in bed, she heard some one rasping. Then she told how she and Mrs. Munroe had gone into Stein's room, found him lying on the floor and of the measures taken to revive him.

Finally they called Stein's brother, C. M. Stein, who in turn summoned a doctor.

Chief Deputy Coroner William A. Macdonald said he believed death was due to acute alcoholism.

Search was instituted for the three unidentified men who were present at the "party."

Kaber, Salvatore Cala, brought back from the Ohio penitentiary as a defense witness, told the jury trying the girl upon a charge of complicity in Kaber's murder.

His testimony proved a distinct disappointment to the defense. They had expected him to refute the statements made by Mrs. Colavito implicating Marian in the murder plot.

LEGION TEAM WINS OVER DAYTON ELEVEN

A brilliant assortment of line smashes and forward passes enabled the American Legion gridgers to defeat the Dayton Blackstones, 23-7 at Gatch Field, Sunday.

The Legionaires scored within the first few minutes of play, when Shoenor, the visiting center, tossed the ball over the head of Long, who was preparing to punt. He was down on his own eight yard line, and Fuller charged over for a touchdown a minute later. He also kicked goal.

The Blackstones right after the kickoff, scored their only touchdown, when they received the kick, and the ball was passed backward to Shoenor, who dashed 70 yards for a touchdown. D. Leis kicked the goal and the score was tied. The knot was loosened in the second quarter when after a succession of line bucking, Stephens tossed the leather 40 yards to Horen who stepped across the goal line. Fuller again made the goal kick good. The ball was mid-field when the half ended.

The rest of the scoring came in the fourth quarter, after the pellet had changed hands frequently in mid-field during the third stanza. A pass, Stephens to Owens, as the quarter ended, a nine-yard dash by Fuller, and Buck's plunge placed the ball on the six. Buck added five and then one, for the score and Fuller kicked goal. Owens recovered a Dayton fumble immediately after the kick, on the visitor's 20 yard line, from where a pass Stephens to Fuller netted the necessary yardage and Fuller kicked goal, ending the scoring. After the last kickoff, Stephens intercepted a pass and successful plunging carried the ball to the visitor's one-yard line from where Owens plunged over the whitewash. He was called back however because time was not called in before the play and a moment later the game ended.

CAN'T BLOW WHISTLES
Columbus, Oct. 10.—In response to numerous complaints from local citizens whose nightly slumbers have been disturbed, Safety Director McCune has sent a letter to division superintendents of every railroad running through this city, calling attention to a municipal ordinance prohibiting engineers from blowing locomotive whistles within the corporate limits of Columbus, and announcing that the ordinance will be enforced.

Any player can soon discover, by a little observation of his own game, the average distance of his different shots. He can readily determine, for instance, if he drives 10 steps, or 200 steps from the tee. He can as well find out his average distance with midiron, jigger, mashie, spoon, etc. He may not know it, but his average ball, driven straight, or fairly straight, will drop at pretty much the same distance from its starting point time after time. A variation of 25 steps is a wide variation, even for the better players.

Now take the driver. Find out what your average distance is. We will assume it is 200 steps. When your ball lights, mark it with a tree or other fixed object directly on the line. Then, as you start toward the ball, keeping your marking object—tree or building—in view, count off your steps until you have gone 200 steps. This gives you your center of further operations, we will say. Put your bag on this center. Your situation now is this: You are there but your ball isn't.

From your center, then, walk directly ahead, toward the marker you selected, five steps. Watch the ground on this line. Then turn directly to the right and walk five steps watching the ground. Then turn, right again, and walk back ten steps. If you have not found the ball, turn left and walk five steps, then turn left and walk ten steps. Then right, five steps and right again, ten steps. If the ball still has eluded you, repeat this whole operation on the other side of your bag—and by the time you have done so you will have found your ball nine times out of ten. The diagram shows just how you step off the fixed area. The plan as you will see simply leaves nothing to the hit or miss system of wandering around aimlessly.

This is to apply when you are on the open fairway. In the rough it will be well to narrow the lines somewhat so your eye will catch the ball if it is partly hidden under the grass. Try this plan. You will be surprised how easily you can find the ball and how completely it will stop the irritating interruptions in your play. My caddie uses this system, which I brought back from England and it never fails him.

RAILS' PROFIT DUE TO CLOSE ECONOMY

Washington, Oct. 10.—Basing the conclusion upon practically complete reports of business on main line railroads during August, the Association of Railway Executives announced Sunday that indicated betterment in earnings on the country's transportation system has so far been due to skimping of expenditures on maintenance work, both on roadbeds and equipment. "Mainly by virtue of this reduction, which represents in a large measure the failure to expend money which must later be put into the properties," the statement asserted, "the railroads in August of this year were able to show a net operating income of $90,200,000. Had they spent the same amount for maintenance during that month that they spent for the same purpose in August, 1920, they would have had this August an operating deficit of $60,800,000."

Total expenditures by class one railroads for August, 1921, on maintenance, the statement estimated at $182,000,000, or 43 per cent less than maintenance expenditures of August, 1920.

Seven motorists were gathered in the police net Saturday and Sunday for violations of the motor traffic laws, in this city.

Ask Some One Who Was There!

On Thursday, October 6th, at the Opera House, the New Edison proved that there is no difference between its RE-CREATION of music and the original music. It was proof that would be good in any court of law.

If you did not attend, take the trouble to find out exactly what happened. Investigate all the details of this drastic test. It was given particularly for the music-lovers of Xenia—so that they might know, through their own personal experience, that there is a phonograph which can give them the exact performance of the living artist.

Elizabeth Spencer, famous soprano, made the test.

She stood on the stage, beside the New Edison. She sang. In the midst of her song, she stopped singing. The New Edison took up the song, and continued it alone. Thus, they alternated—singer and phonograph.

The audience had to watch Miss Spencer's lips, in order to be certain which was singing. The New Edison's triumph was complete and spectacular.

Remember that no other phonograph can sustain this test! Remember that you want a phonograph which does! And remember that the New Edison did it—right here in Xenia.

The NEW EDISON

"The Phonograph with a Soul"

You can have, in your own home, the exact kind of instrument used in the test. This was an Official Laboratory Model—belonging to a customer. Select any Official Laboratory Model in our store, and we will guarantee it to sustain the test of direct comparison, and to do everything that was done in the test at the Opera House.

Ask us about our Budget Plan. It brings you this New Edison for a small payment. Any man or woman, who loves music, can make a gentleman's agreement with us.

KOREA WANTS TO PRESENT CASE

Washington, Oct. 10.—The Korean commission Sunday presented to the American delegation to the conference on the limitation of armament an appeal "for an opportunity to fully present the cause of the Korean people to your delegation, to the end that you will either present it to the conference or that you will create an opportunity for us to do so."

The commission acted through ex-Senator Charles S. Thomas of Colorado, its special counsel.

Since the fundamental principle of the coming conference must be the inviolability of treaties, the Korean delegation said, the Korean question will be a simple one to adjudicate.

"Without exception" the appeal declared, "every nation invited to the conference made a treaty with Korea agreeing to use its good offices to prevent oppression in Korea, and each nation recognized Korea as an independent state."

SPECTATORS BREAK UP BASE BALL GAME

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 10.—A riotous demonstration broke up the fourth game of the Louisville-Baltimore junior world's series here yesterday, when 3,500 spectators, angered over a close decision, swarmed onto the field, pelted the police and umpires with cushions and caused the game to be forfeited to Baltimore, 9 to 0.

And they had not been there very long. The only overnights were the policemen on duty at the gates. They had to be there.

ITALIAN HELD IN CONNECTION WITH MURDER OF GIRL

Held For Present On Charge Of Loitering in New Jersey.

Madison, N. J., Oct. 10.—M. R. Johnson, chief of counsel, left here today for Glen Ridge, 25 miles distant to question Frescha Falice, 42, an Italian, under arrest there in connection with the brutal murder of Janette Lawrence, 12, last week.

The prisoner, according to word received by Chief Johnson answers the description of a man whose "crazy appearance" attracted the attention of Harold Earl of Madison who said he saw a man leave Kluxen woods an hour before the tragedy was discovered.

For the present Felice is held on a charge of loitering. The policemen who questioned him said he could give a good account of himself and talked in an incoherent fashion.

Stains were discovered on Felice's coat. The police said an effort apparently had been made to wash them out, and they could not tell whether they were bloodstains or not.

WIFE WOULD GO TO PRISON WITH ALLEGED ROBBER

Chicago, Oct. 10.—Pretty Bessie Steiler, 19 years old, is willing to go to prison with her husband, Carl, 23, who has surrendered to police and who is alleged to have confessed taking $45,000 from the mails.

"I spent the money with him," the young wife says, "and now I will stay the penalty with him and start life anew with him when it is all over."

The amount Steiler is alleged to have confessed taking was called his share of $234,000 in a Standard Oil mail robbery at Whiting, Ind., two years ago. He now has 10 cents left.

In his diary, which he turned over to the authorities, it is shown that he bought five airplanes, toured the Southwest in a costly automobile and organized an airplane company.

When the Steilers returned to Chicago Friday, the police say, they went to his father's home and told him of the plan to surrender.

"I know it," the father said, "I promised postal authorities that if you came home I would let them know." Then the father went to the telephone and told the police his son was home.

"I knew that I would have to return and face the music," Steiler was quoted as having said. "While I had the money I realized my life's ambition, that of owning and flying an airplane and living o the best, but I did not squander the money."

After the robbery, Steiler said, according to police, he and Bessie went to Los Angeles where he married her.

"It doesn't pay to be a crook," he said, police state. "I went into it before I realized what I was doing. I had what many fellows call a good time, blowing the money on what I desired, but all the time my conscience was hurting me. I missed my folks. So did Bessie, so we decided to come back, clean the slate and start over."

Steiler will be taken to Indianapolis Monday to face trial.

"I'd like to go to jail with him," said his wife. "If they won't let me hang, they can't hang him, and I'll wait."

London, Oct. 10.—Sir Ernest Cassel, financier, who died here recently, left an estate valued at $6,000,000, according to his will, which was probated Saturday. This estate is liable to a duty at the maximum rate of 40 per cent, and the public treasury will benefit to the extent of $2,400,000.

The largest part of the estate was bequeathed to two grandchildren, after whom the chief beneficiary is a sister. Large legacies were left to other relatives, while employees and friends also were remembered. The preliminary announcement of the contents of the will mentions no bequests to charities, but if all trusts mentioned in the document ultimately fail, the whole residuary estate will go to London hospitals.

Among these named in the long list of "old and valued friends" who will receive gifts from the testator's furniture, pictures and plate are Mortimer Schiff, Paul Warburg and Felix Warburg and their wives.

PERSHING WILL NOT TAKE PART; PROGRAM TOO MUCH DELAYED

Paris, Oct. 10.—General Pershing will not go to London to lay the congressional medal on the tomb of the British unknown soldier in Westminster Abbey, and if the ceremony is held another American officer will be designated to represent the United States.

This announcement came last night from a most authoritative source. Lack of time available for the trip between now and Oct. 20, when General Pershing sails for home, is the official explanation for his decision to abandon his visit to England.

It is learned, however, that failure of the British war office either to fix a date for the ceremony, or, until late Saturday, to give any explanation for not replying to repeated inquiries from the American embassy officials, is the chief reason for General Pershing's decision.

General Pershing came to Europe for the purpose of laying the congressional medal on the tombs of the French and British unknown soldiers. The Washington government so informed the British government early in August and again when he sailed. So far as can be learned, no answer was received to either communication which asked that a date be fixed for the ceremony and that the general be informed.

Since his arrival in Paris further inquiries have been made at the British foreign office through the medium of the American embassies in London and Paris. One of these inquiries developed the explanation that such ceremonies usually took a long time to arrange.

The specially trained battalion from the American forces on the Rhine, which acted as a guard of honor at in Paris awaiting word from the British foreign office.

It is known that American officials in Paris, as well as General Pershing and his party have been mystified by the silence of the British government, and the matter has caused much embarrassment to the general. He has been besieged with invitations to dinners and official functions, and the uncertainty of the London arrangements made it difficult to reply to many of these. Some of the military men have advanced the explanation that the rule not permitting British officers and men to accept foreign decorations might be the cause of the situation; they further suggested that the British might want to arrange to confer a decoration similar in importance on America's unknown soldier before accepting the congressional medal.

On the other hand, it is pointed out that the fact that the medal conferred by an act of Congress on behalf of the American people should place the decoration in a special category, where ordinary rules and precedents would not apply.

American officials in Paris are much concerned over the matter, and fears are expressed that an unfriendly interpretation might be placed on the incident unless a full explanation is made of the delay and the ceremony held as soon as it can be arranged.

General Pershing would not comment on this subject today.

Washington, Oct. 10.—Officials in Washington professed to have no information today on General John J. Pershing's decision not to go to London to lay the congressional medal of honor on the tomb of the British unknown dead.

The reasons behind Gen. Pershing's decision not to go and the reasons for the British government's apparent lack of interest in the whole affair were likewise unknown to official Washington so far as could be learned at the state and war department.

COAL OIL CLAIMS ANOTHER VICTIM

Columbus, Oct. 10.—Fire burned to death Mrs. Myrtle Tuft, 21 and destroyed the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Tuft and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Eastwood, at Lockbourne, near here today. The flames started from Mrs. Tuft's bed and spread to the coal oil.

The largest part of the estate was bequeathed to two grandchildren, after whom the chief beneficiary is a sister. Large legacies were left to other relatives, while employees and friends also were remembered. The preliminary announcement of the contents of the will mentions no bequests to charities, but if all trusts mentioned in the document ultimately fail, the whole residuary estate will go to London hospitals.

SHOTS EXCHANGED IN BANK ROBBERY

Muncie, Kansas, Oct. 10.—More than forty shots were exchanged between three bandits and police today after the state bank here had been held up and robbed of $300.

Two of the bandits were reported surrounded in a corn field and it is believed they are wounded.

After holding up the bank cashier and scooping all the money in sight into a bag, the robbers started away in an automobile. A running battle ensued.

FARM INSTITUTES START WORK SOON

Columbus, Oct. 10.—With 352 state-conducted sessions definitely scheduled and with prospects of 175 other locally arranged meetings, the 1921 session of farmers institutes will open Nov. 7. Simultaneous two-day institutes will begin that day at Amesville in Athens County, Birmingham in Guernsey County, Hanging Rock in Lawrence County and Haverhill, Scioto County. Before the end of November institutes will have been held at one or more points in nine counties and the program will reach into every county of the state before spring.

Roads and rural credits have been selected as subjects to be stressed this year.

As in the past, state institutes will run two days. A total of 106 independent groups, holding two-day institutes averaged audiences of 196 for each session last year, while 61 similar groups, holding one-day gatherings, attracted only 146 to each session.

Three hundred and fifteen thousand farm folks attended institutes in Ohio last winter. It is expected that this attendance will be exceeded during the 1921-22 sessions.

LODGE OPPOSES PANAMA BILL

Washington, D. C., Oct. 10.—Conceding that the United States possesses the legal right under the Hay-Pauncefote treaty to give American vessels free access to the Panama canal, Senator Lodge, Republican, of Massachusetts, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, declared in the senate today that there are "compelling reasons why we should not exercise that right at this time."

The senate will be the center of far reaching international events this week, which will add several important pages to American history.

Domestic problems like taxation will be shunted aside temporarily, while the German, Austrian and Hungarian peace treaties are ratified and the Borah bill for free tolls for American ships passing through the Panama Canal is put to a vote.

No doubt is entertained by Republican leaders but that the treaties will be ratified—with reservations—after final consideration of them is begun at 11:30 a. m. Friday.

ALLIES WANT A SEAT ON THE HOOVER RUSSIAN RELIEF WAGON.

Europe is trying strenuously to "horn in" on American relief activities in Russia. It has hitherto made no progress in that direction, in the face of Herbert Hoover's determination that with American dollars and American food there must be all-American control.

There was scheduled to meet in the Belgian capital the so-called "International Committee on Russian Relief," assembled under the direction of the Allied Supreme Council. Represented on the committee are Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, Switzerland, Denmark, Norway and Sweden. Walter Lyman Brown, Mr. Hoover's chief representative in Europe, will attend the Brussels meetings.

It is not yet known in Washington what ways and means the eight European Governments in question propose for co-operation in ameliorating famine distress in Russia. Hitherto no suggestions have reached this country, except that America should continue to furnish the supplies and the workers but should share the glory, and particularly any resultant political benefits, with her European "partners" in the relief enterprise.

Mr. Hoover has shown no enthusiasm for such proposals. The director general of the American relief organization stands where he stood in August when he declined the suggestion of President Ador, of Switzerland, that the Secretary of Commerce should become chairman of an international committee to "consolidate the activities of Russian relief." Mr. Hoover said then, and feels now, that "the problem requires support from every country" and that the United States "cannot hope to cover but a small portion of the situation."

If Europe comes to bat with money or with equivalent supplies, Mr. Hoover undoubtedly would welcome European co-operation. In the interval he is maintaining the Missouriian attitude.

The American relief organization for Russia before many months will have to give serious consideration to the question of its financial sinews. Those in hand when the operations were inaugurated six weeks ago were, at best, only a drop in the bucket. It was figured that Russian children could be fed at the rate of $1 per month per child, and that, if all went well, funds in hand might enable the Hoover administration to "carry on" until March 1, 1922.

The Secretary of Commerce has no intention of asking the people of the United States to contribute a nickel for perpetuation of the Russian relief scheme until our own domestic industrial situation has taken a decisive turn in the right direction. No one today, of course, can predict with assurance when that will be. But until that moment is in sight Mr. Hoover considers it would be inappropriate as well as injudicious to pass the hat in America in any form for Russian relief, desperate as the need might be.

PRESIDENT HARDING TAKES HIGH RANK AS A HARMONIZER.

President Harding's difficulties in Congress, within and without the ranks of his own party, afford him an ideal opportunity for exemplification of his cardinal trait—a genius for conciliation. Although it is true his Administration never before has faced such a snarl and jam as that in which its fiscal program is enmeshed, the Presidents friends are confident he is capable of unscrambling it. No Chief Executive of contemporary times possessed Mr. Harding's talents as a harmonizer.

Apart from his skill in pouring oil on troubled political waters, the President's staunch personal friendships in Congress particularly in the Senate, are bound to stand him in good stead in the existing tangle. Mr. Harding cannot be said to face the situation with equanimity. He is too disappointed with the snail-like procedure on Capitol Hill to be wholly unperturbed. But he is believed to cherish calm expectancy that the sun will soon rise on the overclouded legislative horizon.

WHAT JOHN WANAMAKER SAYS.

Phillips Brooks, who came to his first charge in Philadelphia in the sixties, and with whom the writer then became acquainted, made a deep impression upon all who met him because of what he really was.

The influence of his short life still lives and his memory will be honored and loved.

In those exciting days, President Lincoln sought Phillips Brooks and they were frequently in consultation upon public affairs, as is well known to the writer and his closest friends.

The pity of it, that every one should not seek to do something for his city and its people worth remembering before his records are filed in stone.

(Signed)

JOHN WANAMAKER.

THE SAD OPTIMIST.

The most determined optimist has moments when he sighs, and mutters to himself, "I wish that life is not all pies;" and ere he's from his grouch uprised, he's shed brine from his eyes. The most resolved of Sunny Jims has moments of despair; he fails to dance on buoyant limbs, he seats himself to swear, and wearily he wipes his glims, and rends his beard and hair. I would not give a picayune for any mirthful gent who always hums a cheerful tune and never makes lament; he shows he is a locoed ion, devoid of sentiment. The optimist has gloomy days when he can't frame a song, for everywhere he turns his gaze he sees so much that's wrong, sees virtue halt on stony ways, while crime is going strong. But since he is an optimist, he fights the gloomy view; he taps himself upon the wrist, and says, "This will not do! There never was so dense a mist the sun could not break through! And all the evils I behold are doomed to pass away, and virtue, shod in shining gold, again will have her day; then why lament and rant and scold, and flop my ears and bray?" The optimist sees good advance, though progress oft is slow; and if he is, by any chance, immersed in tears of woe, he soon emerges from his trance, his teardrops cease to flow.

LET'S SEE THAT NOBODY GETS AWAY WITH THIS SORT OF FUDGING

1901--Twenty Years Ago--1921

A small wreck occurred at the Pan Handle yards this morning when a train for Springfield which was pulling out from the depot, had a broken flange on a box car give some trouble, derailing the car.

The Greene County Republican Committee met in the mayor's office at 10 o'clock this morning, and nominated M. A. Broadstone for county recorder by unanimous vote.

Mr. J. P. Chew of the Gazette leaves tonight, for a ten days' visit at Cincinnati and Lawrenceburg, Indiana.

The committee having in charge the plans for new school building on West Market Street held a meeting, last night, and Mr. H. W. Owens, submitted his work so far as it had progressed. The plans will not be complete for about a week.

New Epoch In Schooling In East End Is Started

The cornerstone of the new East High School building on East Market street, for colored children, was laid, Sunday afternoon, with impressive services conducted by Wilberforce Lodge, No. 21, Free and Accepted Masons.

Many people attended the ceremonies in connection with the laying of the cornerstone, the regular Masonic ritual being conducted by the lodge, and the usual articles being secreted in the receptacle.

The laying of the corner stone of the new East End High School building, Sunday marks a new epoch in the history of the education of colored children in Xenia.

David Lee, who began his service with the city school system as janitor of the colored school buildings 35 years ago and who retired two years ago, is ably fitted to tell the history of the progress of the education here.

The retired janitor came to Xenia in 1865 after he had concluded his services in the Civil War. At that time a little frame building on Church street, on the rear of the lot on which the new building is being erected, housed the colored school, and John R. Blackburn, was the principal. The little frame building was later moved to Taylor street after its abandonment for school purposes, and for some time, saw service as a church.

At the time of Principal Blackburn's regime, the building on East Main street, now occupied by the colored Masons, but for many years used to house the colored high school, was used as a school building for white children, and the little building on Church street was the only colored school. Although there were few students at first, as more entered the school, the conditions became congested, and the school board erected a four-room brick building in front of the present Lincoln building, which was later torn away to make room for the Lincoln building.

To take care of the still congested condition, the board of education acquired a frame house next to the present site and still later another frame building next door was thrown open for school purposes. Where the flag pole now stands, was a small brick house occupied by Cyrus Veeny, whose daughter later taught in the colored school here, and who is now living in Los Angeles. This brick house was the next acquired for school purposes, the partitions being torn out to make room for the children.

When Central High School was built, all of the white children in that section of the city were sent to the new building to school, and the East Main street building was taken for the colored high school, being used for that purpose until a few years ago.

The Lincoln building is now equipped with an up-to-date heating plant installed a year ago, which furnishes heated fresh air, that changes in every room, six times every minute.

The school offers to the colored youth all the advantages that the white children receive in the other schools. An up-to-date commercial department, is identified with the clicking of typewriters. Manual training has reached the point where the students themselves will make the teachers' desks for the new school. Domestic science, including cooking and sewing has reached a high point of attainment and a modern dining room is the latest acquisition. Competent teachers, with years of training back of them, give instruction in the various branches of study.

The Lincoln building will be connected with the new structure, through a corridor, which will provide for access to either building both upstairs and down. With the removal of the high school to the new building, the present congested conditions in the Lincoln building will be relieved and students will also have the advantage of a combination gymnasium and auditorium that promises to become a community center for the east end of the city.

Navy blue Poiret twill and duvetyne in a golden shade of tan are not a new combination but the manner in which they are combined in the attractive frock illustrated is modish and pleasing. The young woman who spends her days at an office will find this a suitable frock for daily service, as the combination of colors is inconspicuous without being somber, and the lines are becoming and girlish. This design suggests also a splendid foundation for remodeling a last season's cloth frock, which, if black may change its identity with a front of gray or dull blue, and henna, too, may be used either with black or brown or dark blue.

In the collection which includes this model, loose panel effects were also prominently featured, both for youthful figures and for older women. Another characteristic of this collection was the effort to achieve a youthful silhouette by retaining a flat back and front, with all the fullness of the skirt gathered to the sides. This is a favorite device in French frocks.

AUTOMOBILE KILLS OHIOAN.

St. Marys, O., October 10.—Fred Raudabaugh, 73, years old, farmer, when walking near Moulton, was killed by an automobile that sped on after carrying the body a short distance and placing it on the roadside in front of the victim's son's residence. Marks on the road show that the automobile skidded more than 100 feet.

The Markets

STOCKS

Advance in crude oil prices and improved railroad earnings have figured on the constructive side in the stock market of late. Trading continues in very moderate volume and largely professional. There is little uniformity of opinion. The market will continue under the influence of large factors like tax revision, tariff, and foreign currency, a period of unsettlement and expectancy is in prospect. There is little likelihood of renewed liquidation that will carry prices to new low levels for the year. When "the public" does begin to show interest in stock dealings again, it will comprise a smaller and more select group than in war and post-war years. During the great speculation of 1919 trading was of a widely diffused character.

GRAIN

Traders believe in ultimately higher values, and with reason, judging from statistics, but temporarily sentiment has been mainly bearish. With some European countries apparently overbought and export demand limited, the visible supply has weighed heavily. Bullish factors nonetheless are not absent and a decided rise in export call might start a fresh advance. The heaviest liquidation is over for the present. Corn has dropped so low as to make some friends, who believe that an advance is inevitable. Cash corn recently touched the lowest point since 1906.

LIVESTOCK

The livestock markets have again demonstrated their instability. Prices advance confidently, bringing cheer to the suffering grower only to lose the gain of weeks or months to slide down to new low levels. Heavy receipts of grass cattle have depressed this branch of trade. Although the run was less than last year, prices declined to the season's lowest level. Heavy cattle have no friends. Chicago has begun to receive Western range cattle. The stocker market has been fairly active with values at the lowest point in upwards of ten years. Growers want light cattle and as many of them as they can get for their money. Hogs fell to the lowest level since 1916. Supplies were liberal and sentiment was bearish although it was felt that packing hogs had reached bottom. The market's course during the next 30 days is a matter of speculation. The tide turned in live mutton after one of the most severe breaks of the season.

COTTON

Cotton futures broke sharply upon publication of the government crop reports, which showed a condition of only 42.2 and an indicated yield of 6,537,000 bales. The reason lay in the fact that the market had discounted an even more bullish report. The condition is the worst ever known. Bears tried to divert attention from supply to consumption with a measure of success. Rallies followed. Ginnings to September 25, approach closely to 3,000,000 bales and much exceed those of last year and of other recent years.

WOOL

Buying relaxed somewhat in the wool market. Medium grades received considerable attention. Some speculators favor the medium to low grades. Fine wools are firm in price despite the disparity between them and lower grades. The supply is undoubtedly short. Lower grade wools show a tendency to gain ground. Carpet wool manufacturers are holding back for lower prices and claim to have stocks on hand sufficient for their immediate requirements.

METALS

Nearly all reports from the metals industries are of a cheering character. Iron and steel production and sales are increasing slowly but steadily. Lead and tin show an improved tone, while copper has firmed under recent substantial buying.

AGRICULTURE

The farmers' co-operative grain movement is in a state of almost total collapse, according to President Griffin of the Chicago Board of Trade. Grain dealers have naturally tried to discourage the movement and now are conducting a coroner's inquest. As it happens, the inquest may be a bit premature. The farmers have demonstrated their ability to market, livestock, wool and other farm products co-operatively and should be able to apply this experience to marketing grain.

Admittedly, the United States Grain corporation has cut no figure in this year's grain movement, but any new enterprise of such magnitude requires time. It labors against heavy odds. Grain men say that the farmers have been deceived by promises "impossible of fulfillment." The effort to market grain co-operatively on so large a scale as that contemplated by the new organization may fail of its own weight, but the farmers may in years to come market a fair proportion of the grain harvest co-operatively with notable success. The co-operative movement is firmly grounded.

Prices are moving into alignment slowly, and forecast the farmer's return as an active buyer in the retail market. The announcement of another 10 to 15 per cent cut on agricultural implements by the International Harvester Co. will help to put implements on a common level with grain and livestock. The International is the leader in its field and its prices have an important influence on implement prices generally. Other companies must keep step with its reductions in order to compete with it. The company announces that it can foresee no lower prices during the manufacturing season of 1922.

HENRY CLEWS

Weekly Financial Review

Announcement of a definite programme for the disposal of taxation and the tariff at an early date has been made by authorized spokesmen of the Administration. It may clearly be expected that some action will be had within a reasonable time. This should prove encouraging to those who have been obliged to delay business decisions because of uncertainty as to the policy of the Government with respect to taxation and the tariff. Meantime the unemployment conference has plainly developed the fact that the number of men out of work in the country is very much less than has been asserted by the government statisticians. Whatever the volume of unemployment may be, it is at all events in the process of being relieved through expansion of industrial demands.

BETTER PRODUCTIVE PROSPECTS

Reports made public by the Federal Reserve Board show a decidedly better productive outlook. Many plants that have heretofore been running on extremely short time have within recent weeks enlarged their activity. It would seem that in a number of industries where the volume of output has been down to a small fraction of capacity there is now at least 50 per cent or more activity. There has been no slackening of demand in industries manufacturing for consumption, although textile makers have been subjected to more or less uncertainty by disturbances in the cotton market. These have tended to cause a slackening of buying demand in some directions, a condition which however is temporary, pending the arrival of a more settled condition of the market. The growth of export trade within the past few weeks has been decidedly encouraging, especially in view of the fact that the difficulties existing in certain South American markets have been so largely relieved. August earnings of railroads, as now semi-officially estimated, are likely to run well toward $30,000,000 a satisfactory gain above those for July which were themselves upon an improved footing. Many products which have heretofore been nearly unsalable are beginning to move. Included among them are oil, copper, hemp and leather.

Further analysis of the new traction report has produced a great diversity of opinion. Traction securities have not responded very seriously to the report, owners evidently feeling doubt as to the effect of the recommendations either way. As a future influence in the market for public utility securities, the report must not, however, be minimized.

THE CREDIT SITUATION

Progressive improvement of credit conditions continues to be observed. The last report of the Federal Reserve system is especially noteworthy for the improvement it shows in the condition of the Southern and Western banks and for the decrease in the degree of their dependence upon the Northern and Eastern institutions. Rediscounting between Federal Reserve banks has been reduced to a low level as compared with last year, and country banks are now depositing more freely than for a long time with city institutions. A temporary advance in money rates around the first of the month was due chiefly to special demands connected with the October 1 disbursements, and have now once more disappeared, leaving prospects better than at any time heretofore for an abundant supply of loanable cash. Reduction of the Philadelphia rediscount rate to 5 per cent reflects this situation. Already the high interest rate offerings of the past few months are showing material modification, the cost of money on a given type of security being fully 1 per cent off, as compared with the situation of last spring. Prompt absorption of the new Argentine loan shows that the investor is looking with a more favorable eye on foreign securities. Arrangements have been practically completed for meeting the British and French securities in this market during the autumn.

MARKET REVIEW

AND OUTLOOK
There has been a hopeful situation in the market during the past week, although trading has not been as active as some had expected. Oil prices continue to rise and most of the oil stocks in consequence are showing a firmer front. The copper shares have been in somewhat better demand on the statement that the stocks of copper on hand Sept. 1 had been reduced to 405,000 short tons, half of which were held in trust for export alone. Steel and iron conditions are also more encouraging, recent advices showing a greater number of blast furnaces at work and the industry steadily forging ahead, thus proving that the trade revival reported has been founded on fact. There can be no doubt that good reason exists for the improved sentiment, but the market at present still lacks the impetus of more extensive buying from the general public to keep the upward movement going. In the absence of this the backing and filling process witnessed this week will doubtless continue.

PRINCESS XENIA WILL RULE LEEDS' HOUSEHOLD NOW

Paris, Oct. 10.—Princess Xenia, last of the Romanoffs, henceforth will rule the House of Leeds.

This became a "certainty" Sunday afternoon when by two seconds she beat her newly-acquired husband, "Billy" Leeds, to the "matrimonial carpet" before the altar in the Russian church, tradition asserting that the first to reach it is to be the domestic ruler.

Despite the most imposing array of Balkan royalty seen at any wedding since the World War strict simplicity, insisted upon by Princess Christopher, mother of the bridegroom, is prevalent throughout the protracted ceremonies.

Reports that recent illness had aged the Princess Christopher proved to be false. A murmur of admiration sounded as she entered the church.

The legal ceremony was performed Saturday and the Greek orthodox wedding Sunday.

The young pair departed after the reception Sunday for London, where they will board a houseboat to pass their honeymoon exploring the rivers and canals of England and France. The bridegroom's plan for an airplane trip was vetoed by his mother.

DINNER STORIES

The bright pupil was required to write a 300-word essay on the new automobile which his father had just purchased. After considerable thinking he finally wrote how his father bought it, and a short time later started away with his family, going eight miles an hour, and then, unfortunately, got stuck in the mud. The boy concluded thus: "I have now used 100 words, and pa spoke the other 200 when we walked back through the mud."

"Hereafter there will be absolutely no smoking in barracks at any time," bellowed a captain in Raritan arsenal, New Jersey, after a fire caused by a forgotten butt had been quelled. "Absolutely! Not at any time!" Then he paused and added an afterthought: "a louder bellow even than before: 'Especially at night!'"

"Turned fine music," said Uncle Josh as he sat listening to the orchestra in a Broadway restaurant, "but I can't seem to make head or tail out of it. Here I've heard that piece 'By Request' six times and 'Extra' twice, and they sound different every time."

A story is told of two colored men who were sitting on the steps of a Louisiana grocery store. "What have you named your baby, Rastus?" asked one of them. "Sam Pro Tem Johnson, sah." "What's the Pro Tem for?" "To show that the name is only temporary, sah. We kinder thought Sam might like to choose his own name when he grew up, so we put in de Pro Tem as a warning to de public."

RAISE ABOUT $100 DURING TAG DAY FOR LOCAL SCHOOL

About one hundred dollars was raised by solicitors from the Parent-Teacher Association, at the Tag Day campaign conducted Saturday.

The money will be used chiefly to furnish warm lunches for the pupils of the Opportunity School, during the winter. A shortage in the number of tags, and scarcity of workers, caused a failure to approach a number of the pedestrians. A second Tag Day will probably be held in the near future by the Association. Members of the organization are announcing that money contributed by those, who were not solicited, Saturday, will be forwarded to the fund.

LOCAL JEWS ASKED TO AID IN RELIEF

Local Jews have received from the American Jewish Relief Committee of which Louis Marshall, of New York is chairman, a Yum Kippur appeal for help for the stricken Jews abroad.

The appeal, sent out by David A. Brown, chairman of the 1921 campaign, comes at a time when Jews gather in the synagogues throughout the world, for Wednesday, known as Yum Kippur, is the Jewish Day of Atonement, the high holy day of the Jewish calendar.

The appeal in part says: "This is the day of consecration. We hear cries of our helpless brethren in famished Europe. Today as we worship in the house of God, the cry for help rises above the voices in prayer and the chanting of the choir. Let us meet our duty, that the wandering refugees scattered through central Europe may be brought home again; that thousands of helpless little children may be given food and raiment; that the dreaded typhus and other prevalent diseases be successfully combated; and that our people may become once more self-sustaining and self-respecting. To do these things? Fourteen million dollars will be asked of American Jewry within the next six months to aid Herbert Hoover in his work in Russia, in addition to answering the heart-rending cry which comes forth from Poland, Austria, Palestine and elsewhere. The Jews of America have never failed before. They will not fail now."

MANY ORGANIZE FRATERNITY HERE

Members of the Dayton Chapter of the Phi Delta Kappa fraternity, are now making efforts to establish a chapter of the fraternity in this city.

C. W. Roenholdt, a member of the Dayton Chapter, with several other members visited this city last week and called on several prospects, and as a result a meeting will be held at the Chamber of Commerce, Wednesday evening, at which time the Dayton members will be here and explain the organization.

Phi Delta Kappa is a Greek fraternity identical to collegiate fraternities with the exception that it is open to non-college men, a high school education not being necessary for membership. The membership is open to men over 18 years of age, chosen by the Chapter, and the order is secret and ritualistic of a social nature, without insurance or other benefits. It was founded in 1902 in Marion, Indiana, and incorporated and chartered under the statutes of Indiana in 1906, now being national in scope.

"I'll tell the world what I think about Tanlac. It's the best medicine ever made," said H. Ryan, 93 Lincoln St., Akron, Ohio.

Rheumatism had got the best of me and my knees were twice their natural size. I was in such a bad fix I had to give up work and felt pretty miserable, as I needed my wages."

WOMAN SERIOUSLY INJURED AS AUTOS COLLIDE ON PIKE

Mrs. Walter McMillan, of near Wilmington, suffered possible internal injuries and bruises, when the automobile in which she was riding collided with a Ford Roadster driven by O. I. Davis, of Casstown, at Middleton's Corners, seven miles from Xenia on the Wilmington pike at eight o'clock, Sunday evening.

After being attended by physicians hastily summoned, the injured woman was taken to a Wilmington hospital. Mr. McMillan, who was driving their car received a fractured rib and suffered considerably from shock, and Mrs. McMillan's parents, who accompanied them, were bruised and shaken. A. J. Cross, Casstown, who was riding with Davis, received severe contusions about the face.

According to the story told by Davis, the McMillan machine had bright head lights, and it is believed that as the cars neared each other, that Mr. McMillan leaned forward to turn on his dimmers, inadvertently turning his machine to one side and directly in the path of the Ford car. They collided head-on, the Ford car turning clear over, after throwing the occupants out, and the McMillan machine turning over on the side. Both were badly damaged.

Davis and Cross belonged to a party of six boys from Casstown and Troy, that had gone to a point near Peebles, Saturday morning, to a camp and to pick nuts. They were returning when the accident happened, the other four boys were following the roadster in another machine.

The McMillans were returning to Wilmington from Dayton.

Dr. R. L. Haines, of Paintersville and Dr. Kent R. Finley of this city were summoned to the scene, and Dr. Paul Espey, who happened to be passing, also rendered medical assistance.

It is believed that Mrs. McMillan, who was the most seriously injured, suffered a broken pelvic bone, besides other injuries.

CHILDREN OF ROSS COUNTY NEVER SAW ANY SCHOOLHOUSE

Columbus, October 10.—In civilized Ohio, in which citizens have imagined that rudiments of learning are general, the Bing law, involving county truant officers, is bringing to light families in which no children ever have enrolled as pupils in the schools.

The Ross County officer has found four families, with 25 children, 16 being of school age, who never have been to school.

Their physical condition was pitiable, one being in the advanced stages of tuberculosis. An eight year old girl had pernicious anaemia and none ever had received medical attention.

The families resided in an isolated district, although it is only 50 miles from the Ohio capitol.

The Department of Education plans to arouse sentiment in Ross County for erection of a small school to end the long neglect of the state and county.

HOW WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

May Escape the Dreaded Sufferings of that Period by Taking Mrs. Block's Advice

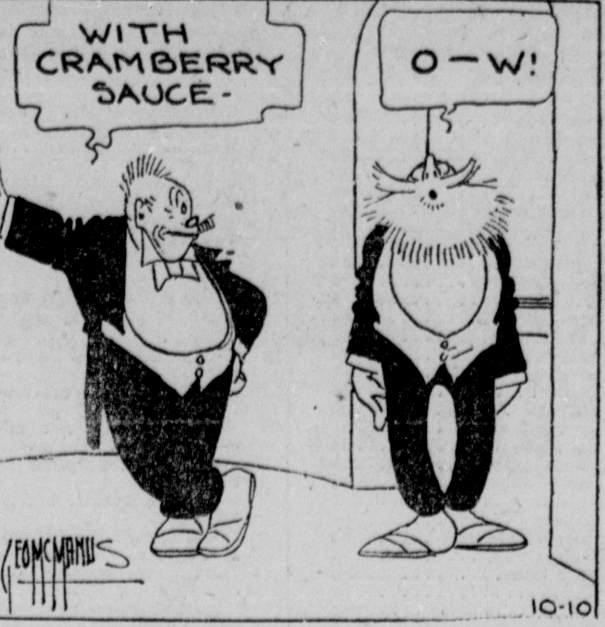

Hopkins, Minn.—"During Change of Life I had hot flashes and suffered for two years. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the paper and got good results from taking it. I recommend your medicine to my friends and you may publish this fact as a testimonial."—Mrs. ROBERT BLOCK, Box 542, Hopkins, Minn.

It has been said that not one woman in a thousand passes this perfectly natural change without experiencing a train of very annoying and sometimes painful symptoms. Those dreadful hot flashes, sinking spells, spots before the eyes, dizzy spells, nervousness, are only a few of the symptoms. Every woman at this age should profit by Mrs. Block's experience and try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., about your health. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Efficient Housekeeping
BY Laura A. Kirkman

A SERPENTINE CREPE LUNCHEON SET

Several of my readers have written to ask me to print an occasional needlework article. So in the future I will comply with this request.

Today I will describe one of the new serpentine crepe luncheon sets that are "all the rage." These are dainty and yet are a wonderful help to a busy housekeeper because they require no ironing after washing.

This set consists of a centerpiece and six dollies (you can also make six napkins, if you wish, in the same way, only making them a little smaller than the dollies.) White serpentine crepe comes 30 inches wide, so the centerpiece is thirty by thirty inches square and the dollies are fifteen inches square (two can be gotten out of the width of the material.) You will need two and one-eighth yards for this set of (thirty inches the length of the material for each centerpiece, and fifteen more inches th length of the material for each for the three pair of dollies.) This cotton crepe costs anywhere from 29c a yard to 22c according to the locality in which it is bought.

Beside this material mercerized silk or real silk floss of various colors, and one of the "transfer designs" gotten out by pattern firms. These transfer patterns are in flower designs, butterfly designs, and in hosts of other designs; they are stamped on the material by placing the pattern ink-side-down on the crepe and running a moderately warm iron over the pattern-paper. You will want a small design in one corner of each of the six dollies and a slightly larger design in one corner of the centerpiece (both large and small repetitions of the same design come on these patterns.)

After buying your crepe material, however, the first step is not to stamp it; the first step, after cutting it into the center-piece and six dollies, is to fringe these squares. The fringe runs all around each square and is about three-quarters of an inch deep. Do the fringing with a pin. The selvedge edge must be cut off to allow fringing. Although the fringe of this luncheon set does not fray out—even after many launderings—nevertheless many women prefer to guard against fraying by overhanding the material in white floss, or fine white cotton thread, just at the top of the fringe.

Now that you have your centerpiece and six dollies fringed, you can go to work stamping them. Then comes the last step, embroidering them. If you have chosen a butterfly pattern I would advise you to make the circles inside the wings yellow, and the border of the wings a different color with each napkin; in this way, the yellow spots represent the golden spots on a real butterfly's wings, and yet the other colors (lavender, blue, old-rose, etcetera) may be introduced on the different dollies with the gold note the only thing to make them similar.

If any reader wishes to know the address of a pattern house from which she can purchase an Autumn needlework catalogue (this costs 25c and will contain pictures of transfer patterns which she can send for, for a small sum) I will be glad to send her this address upon receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

WINE QUESTION UP TO COMMISSIONER

Washington, Oct. 10.—The long disputed question of wholesale dealers in sacramental wines being permitted to do business under the national prohibition laws has been put up to the department of justice for decision. Secretary Mellon has asked Attorney General Daugherty to rule whether commercial firms can be permitted to deal in wines for religious purposes.

Under an opinion of former Attorney General Palmer, which banned wholesale liquor dealers from selling intoxicants, the treasury contemplated the inclusion of the dealer in sacramental wines in the general category. Protests against a ban on the dealer in wines for religious purposes were lodged with the treasury by a number of denominations on the ground that the churches were unable to obtain wines of a standard quality from other sources.

Existing regulations, confining the sale of liquors in wholesale quantities to wholesale druggists and manufacturers have excepted sacramental wine dealers pending Mr. Daugherty's determination of the law.

THE NEW GENERATION

By Jane Phelps

AT THE PURPLE PUP. . . . CHAPTER 9

John strated at her mother's request. For the first time she appeared to notice that her companions were standing beside her, listening.

"This is Martha Hardy, mother, and Mr. Tennant, Mr. Forrester—Martha," she added, and Dean Tennant introduced himself to Craig.

While the two men were talking Joan whispered:

"What does it all mean, Mother? What are you doing here?"

Margaret lighted a cigarette she had obtained from Forrester before she answered, almost convulsed by the look on Joan's face.

"Why I am going to eat my dinner as soon as it is served, isn't a dinner what we came here for?"

Joan opened her mouth, then closed it abruptly.

"I suppose I should beg your pardon, mother, but why did you not let me know you were coming so I could meet you." She looked with unconcealed dislike at Forrester, who was immensely amused, but carefully hid his feelings.

"I was met Joan, Mrs. Walters met me, and I thought it unnecessary to disturb your studies."

"But what are you doing in New York? Just visiting Mrs. Walters? Why isn't she with you?" Joan's voice taking on a sharp note as she glanced at Craig Forrester.

"Oh, nothing much! I was bored to death after you left, so decided to come to the big town and be amused." Then: "I'm just having the time of my life going to theaters, restaurants and all sorts of places."

"But me no buts, Joan. Go and dine with your friends. When you finish we will take you home if you like. If not come and see me tomorrow." Margaret flattered herself she was playing the indifferent mother-pretty well.

"How long have you been in New York." Joan asked loath, seemingly, to turn away, although at Margaret's remark her two friends had slowly moved toward the other side of the room.

"Not very long. Run away now and eat your dinner. There comes our waiter with ours and I'm starving!" Margaret blew a cloud of smoke in the air. Watching Joan keenly she was induced to add:

"I guess you'd better not come tomorrow after all. I have several engagements. Come the day after. Have you a pencil, Craig?" She used his given name purposely.

"There is my address. Shall I expect you day after tomorrow, say at four?"

"I'll come," Joan answered in a muffled voice, then turned and joined Martha and Dean, a scowl on her pretty face.

"Do get me some water quickly," Margaret said to Forrester, "this horrible cigarette smoke is choking me."

Forrester voice shook with laughter as he obeyed.

"You are delicious, Margaret," he said for the second time that night.

Their dinner finished Margaret deliberately walked over to the table where Joan was sitting with her young friends, her untasted dinner before her.

Mrs. Mayden smiled charmingly.

"We're going now," she said, "but if you can arrange it plan to stay to dinner when you come day after tomorrow. I have some friends dining with me. Here's my address. East Fifty you notice. Be careful you don't forget and go West."

"But shan't I see you alone, Mother?" Joan's face was flushed, her eyes angry.

"Oh, yes! We'll have an hour before dinner. Wear your prettiest gown. I want my daughter to do me justice," and laughingly Margaret bent down and left a careless kiss on the flushed cheek, longing instead to take the girl in her arms and tell her how she loved her.

Joan's face was suffused, she looked almost tearful.

"But Mother—Mumsie—" The last word almost unnerved Margaret, but pulling herself together, remembering how much she had at stake she only said:

"Be sure and come by four. We'll have a nice old-fashioned chat."

For the third time that night Forrester declared:

"You are delicious, Margaret!"

Soprano High "C" Without "Metallic" Suggestion

A Brunswick Achievement

The severest test of a phonograph is in reproducing "high notes," especially soprano.

You have noted how most instruments vibrate and sound "metallic" when the higher notes are reached.

But come in and hear a soprano record on The Brunswick. Note the clear-toned, ringing intensity of the "high notes." Then you will realize why greatest musicians have chosen The Brunswick for their own homes.
